CHAPTER XIV.

A STRONG man is to be pitied who deliberately shuns being thrown into contrast with a rival more fortunate in the estimation of the world. George was like a sensitive, high spirited dwarf trying to avoid seeing tall men. The whole town was going to hear the governor's address the next Sunday; the whole town was talking of his admiration for the belle of the place. For the remainder of the week George was uncertain what he should do, but when the eventful morning arrived he went to a livery stable, engaged a horse and buggy and drove out to his mother's. He might have chosen better, for the sordid surroundings of the farmhouse, which had never seemed like home to him in the highest sense, only made him feel more depressed.

"The Lord knows I'm astonished to see you," Mrs. Buckley said as she came to the door wiping her fat hands on her apron. "Why, all the settlement, it seems to me, has gone in town to see the governor, but somehow I didn't care to go. I'm too old to ride ten miles in a joltin' wagon to see jest a man. How do you come on?"

"I feel all right," George replied. "I didn't care to hear the speech."

"You say you didn't?" Mrs. Buckley's heavy brows ran together. She stood for a moment eying her son with sympathetic fixity. She had heard the rumor of the governor's attentions to Lydia Cranston. They were now in the sitting room, and he stood warming himself before the fire.

"Oh, George," she suddenly got out, "I wish you'd let me talk to you an' not git mad."

"Mad? Why, mother," he exclaimed, "how could I get mad at you?"

The old woman sat down in her low chair in the chimney corner. "You are my boy," she said, a tremor in her gentle voice, "an' some things hurt—cut me to the quick. Oh, George, I wish you would sort o' be content with common folks like we all are. You are as good, every bit an' grain, as that Virginia gal, but somehow she's situated different. Now, fer instance, they say she's got a chance, an' a good one, to marry the governor."

"I think she has," George said coldly, his lips tightening, "but what of that, mother?"

"Oh, it nearly kills me to have folks think you—you want to get some'n' an' cayn't," replied the old woman plaintively. "An', George, as things go in this world, Lydia Cranston will have to take that offer. She cayn't git around it. Gals kin have the'r choice, an'—mind you, I don't know a thing—she may, down in her heart, like you the best on account o' you bein' younger an' better lookin', but folks in her walk o' life, I reckon, have to sorter look to the future. Her folks will make her, ef she draws back. George, I—I hope you don't feel bad about it."

"Mother, I'm all right." He sat down before the fire. He looked out through the small paned window upon a wide stretch of cotton land where he had toiled through his boyhood. To the left, inside the garden fence, was the log smokehouse, the barn and stables; to the right, the yard where the chickens and ducks were scratching the earth for food. The old woman said nothing—there was nothing she could say, for his reply had not reassured her.

"Why do you think anything is wrong with me?" he suddenly asked. "Has anybody"—

"You cayn't keep folks' mouths shet," Mrs. Buckley said. "You've got more friends 'an any boy in all this mountain country, but even a body's best friends will git jealous when he begins to rise in the world. Most of 'em thought you was flyin' too high, George, all along—in visitin' the best in Darley—an' they are tickled to be able to circulate the report that she's goin' to marry the governor of the state. You see, they kin say that an' not seem to be talkin' agin you, but they are chucklin' all the same."

"I can't help their talking nor their thinking," Buckley said, with a sigh.

"But I believe I'd put a bold face on it an' laugh at the idea o' marryin' anybody right now. Then I'd sorter slack off from goin' to the Cranstons'. George, I kin stand anything better, it seems to me, than havin' 'em all think you are miserable over it, an' when the wedding takes place"—

"Then you count on it as a certainty, do you?" His face clouded over, and, in spite of his self control, his voice rang harshly.

She stared at him pityingly. "Thar's no use talkin' about it," she said softly. "George, you hain't ready to admit it, an' that's the wust sign of all. You jest cayn't see it like other folks, an' thar's jest one reason fer that—you cayn't stand to think it possible."

He voiced no denial. What was the use? The old woman, crude as she was, had known him from the first pulsation of the life that was now raging like a mad torrent within him. In his mind's eye he had a glimpse of the village church, packed to the doors with an eager, expectant crowd. He saw the flowers on the altar. There was a profound hush. The Cranston carriage had driven up. The governor of the state was assisting two ladies to alight. All eyes were on the party of four as they came in and moved unconcernedly to the Cranston pew. Lydia and the guest of honor were walking together. She was being admired, envied. George Buckley bowed his head; the red light from the fire touched his powerful neck and shoulders; he was sinking into the deepest ooze of despair.

"Mind you, I'm not sayin' one word agin the gal," Mrs. Buckley broke into his reflections abruptly. "In fact, I like 'er. I can't tell you how much I do like 'er. Folks may swear they hate kings an' queens beca'se they stand above 'em, but they'll feel honored by the notice o' royal folks. That may be one reason I like Lydia Cranston. I don't know, I'm only human, but I jest feel like she's of a different order. Do you know the time you introduced me to 'er? Well, a woman knows a woman, no matter how different they've been raised, an' I seed that she was surprised to—to see that I was—well, jest like I am, but I tuk a strong likin' to 'er fer the way she acted."

"The way she acted?" George Buckley spoke under his breath, but the woman heard.

"Yes; I could tell she was doin' 'er level best to make me feel easy, an' it made me like 'er. Then the next time"—

"The next time?" George was really surprised. "Did you meet her again?"

Mrs. Buckley was silent; her eyes had fallen. She had said more than she intended.

"Did you say you met her again, mother—again?"

Mrs. Buckley looked up resolutely. "I never intended to mention that," she said, "an' I don't know as I ort to now, bein', as it seems, she never told you about it. But it was when she was over at Shirley Springs last week. One mornin' she come here to see me, an', George, as God is my judge, I never spent a happier hour in all my life. I don't know how it was, but she jest had a way o' makin' me feel good. Ef she ever thought she was better'n common folks, nobody could 'a' told it. I was piecin' a scrap quilt, an' she set down an' set to work on it. I never seed the like. Her little, slim, white fingers jest moved like lightnin'. An' talk! She could think o' more cheerful things to say than anybody I ever seed. It was that way till nigh 12, an' then she left. George—she kissed me!"

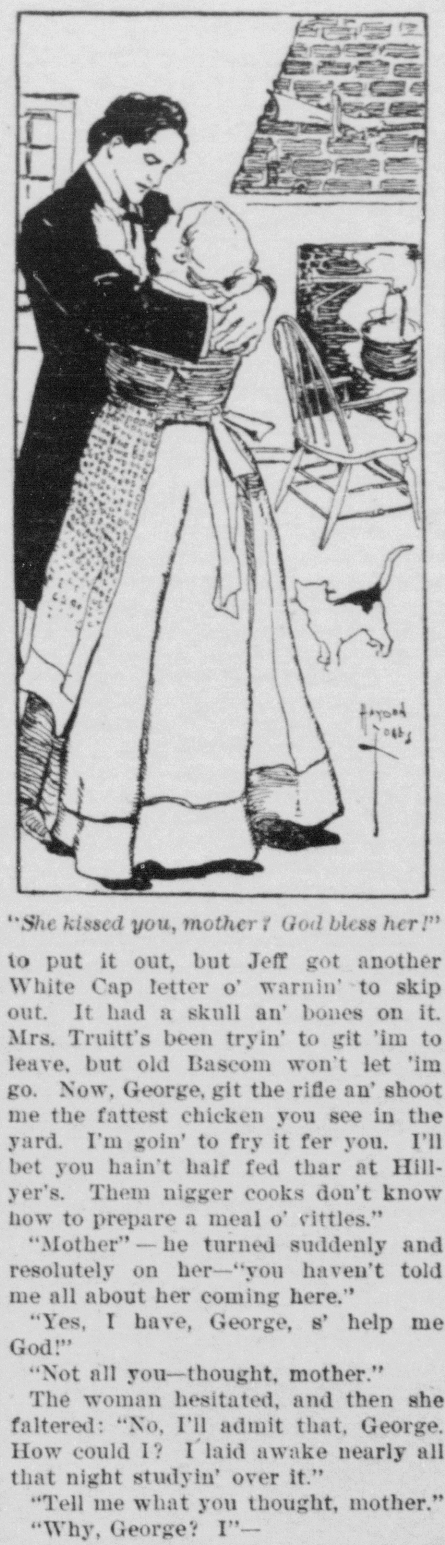
Buckley was staring, an unfathomable expression in his big, yearning eyes.

"She kissed you, mother? God bless her!" And he rose and put his arms about the old woman's neck. His eyes were glistening.

"Yes, she did twice, out at the gate. I never intended to tell you about that, fer I—I didn't think it was exactly the sort o' thing to—to make you take yore mind off'n 'er, but she did it, an' to my dyin' day I'll always think well of 'er an' stand up fer 'er. They may make 'er marry that man or some other in the'r circle, but fer about one hour me an' her was on the level God's been tryin' fer centuries to bring folks up to. Yes; she may not be strong enough to go her way with all them ropes tied to 'er, but ef she's ever a mother she'll be a good un—with a soul an' heart. I like 'er, George, an' I don't blame you fer acceptin' her friendship. Ef I was a man I would, ef that was all the crumb she ever drapped my way. Lovin' a woman like that's jest ambition, an' ambition's right an' upliftin'."

Mrs. Buckley was looking at her son, but he had turned his face away. He stood still, his features working, his strong breast heaving tumultuously.

"The Truitts are a-havin' a world of trouble with Jeff," said Mrs. Buckley irrelevantly. "Somebody set fire to the'r barn last night. They managed to put it out, but Jeff got another White Cap letter o' warnin' to skip out. It had a skull an' bones on it. Mrs. Truitt's been tryin' to git 'im to leave, but old Bascom won't let 'im go. Now, George, git the rifle an' shoot me the fattest chicken you see in the yard. I'm goin' to fry it fer you. I'll bet you hain't half fed thar at Hillyer's. Them nigger cooks don't know how to prepare a meal o' vittles."



"She kissed you, mother? God bless her!"

"Mother"—he turned suddenly and resolutely on her—"you haven't told me all about her coming here."

"Yes, I have, George, s' help me God!"

"Not all you—thought, mother."

The woman hesitated, and then she faltered: "No, I'll admit that, George. How could I? I laid awake nearly all that night studyin' over it."

"Tell me what you thought, mother."

"Why, George? I"—

"Mother, this is the darkest day I have ever spent. I had one other as bad, but I drowned it in whisky, but now"—he smiled rigidly—"I am facing the music with a clear head. Mother, what did you think?"

"Well, George," after another pause, "I sorter believed she kissed me an'—an' looked like she wanted to cry in my arms beca'se I was yore mother. I never could make out—women are sech riddles, even to the'rselves—I never could make out whether it was a goodby kiss intended fer you or—or another sort. I watched her tell she got clean across the pasture field, an' she walked all the way with 'er head down. Now git the gun."

He sat down suddenly. "Mother, I couldn't kill a living thing today," he said. "I want everything to live and breathe. How can I give her up when—when she kissed you?"

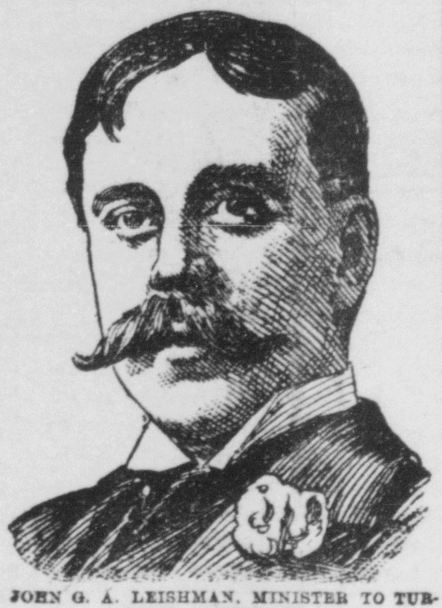
BROUGHT TO TIME

Turkey Gives Up in Face of Uncle Sam's Warships.

Constantinople, Aug. 15.—After prolonged pour parlours and considerable haggling on the part of the Turks, a satisfactory solution of the American school question has been arrived at. This matter, which is the most important of the American demands, was settled by extending to American schools the same treatment as that accorded to schools under the protection of other powers. A settlement of other matters affecting American interests in Turkey of second importance has also been effected, and Minister Leishman has telegraphed to Rear Admiral Jewell, in command of the United States squadron sent to Smyrna, instructing him to salute the batteries on land and depart.



JOHN G. A. LEISHMAN, MINISTER TO TURKEY.

Will Go to Gibraltar.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The United States war vessels now at Smyrna under commanad of Rear Admiral Jewell are the Cleveland, the Olympia and the Baltimore. They will leave Smyrna today and will sail for Gibraltar. The ships comprise what is known as the American European squadron, and will continue their cruise in European waters for some time.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The Russian armored cruiser Rurik was sunk in the engagement in the strait of Korea, Sunday.

The British torpedo boat destroyer Decoy sank off the Sicilly islands as the result of a collision with another destroyer. The crew was saved.

The British bark Inverkip was sunk and twenty persons were drowned as the result of a collision off Fastnett Rock, Ireland, with the British ship Loch Carron.

The Russian ships which have returned to Port Arthur are in a badly battered condition, particularly the Retvizan and Pobieda, which are said to be mere floating wrecks.

During the regatta of the Potomac Club on the Potomac river, near Georgetown, a gasoline pleasure launch accommodating nineteen persons capsized, and ten were drowned.

MASTERY OF SEA

A DECISIVE VICTORY

Following Admiral Togo's Victory at Port Arthur Kamimura Routs the Vladivostok Squadron.

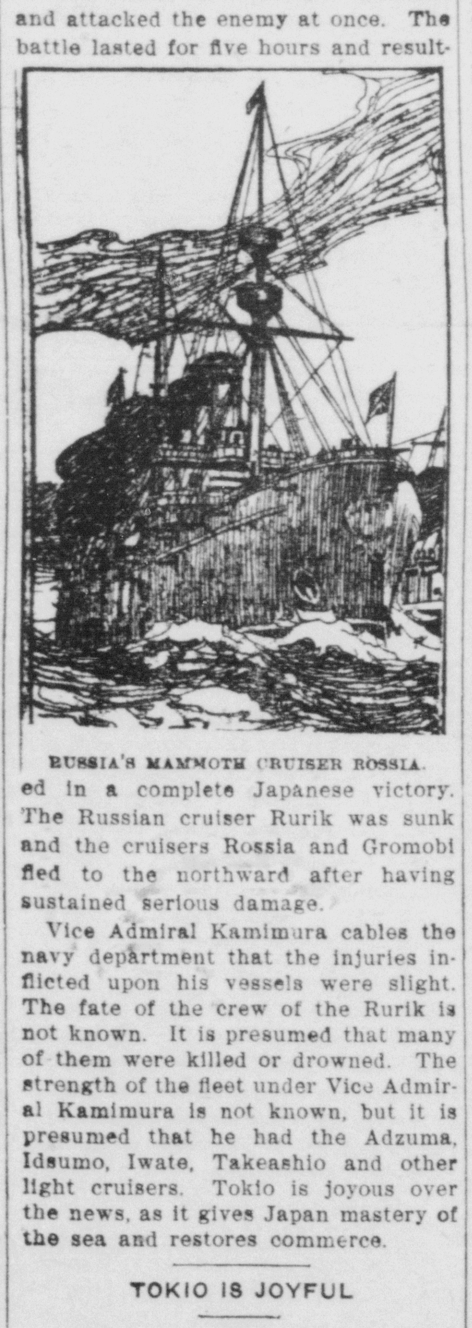
The Rurik Is Sent to the Bottom and Balance of Fleet Put to Flight.

Chefoo, Aug. 15 (1:30 p. m.).—A telegram just received here from a reliable source states that a general attack on Port Arthur began at 4 o'clock this morning.

Tsingchou, Aug. 15 (Noon).—The Russian flags have just been pulled down from the battleship Czarevitch and the three cruisers which took refuge here. The lowering of the colors was done in the presence of the German governor.

Liao Yang, Aug. 15.—Twelve Japanese regiments have left in the direction of Port Arthur. It is stated on trustworthy authority that the mikado has ordered that Port Arthur must be taken at any cost, even if it necessitates the suspension of operations in Manchuria, and it is quite possible that the main Japanese force will proceed to Port Arthur within a few days. Rain has stopped all operations.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Vice Admiral Kamimura encountered the Russian Vladivostok squadron at dawn Sunday north of Tsu Island in the strait of Korea and attacked the enemy at once. The battle lasted for five hours and resulted in a complete Japanese victory. The Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk and the cruisers Rossia and Gromobi fled to the northward after having sustained serious damage.



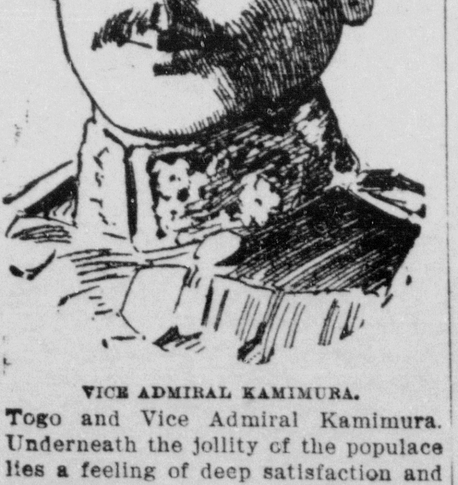
RUSSIA'S MAMMOTH CRUISER ROSSIA.

Vice Admiral Kamimura cables the navy department that the injuries inflicted upon his vessels were slight. The fate of the crew of the Rurik is not known. It is presumed that many of them were killed or drowned. The strength of the fleet under Vice Admiral Kamimura is not known, but it is presumed that he had the Adzuma, Idsumo, Iwate, Takeashio and other light cruisers. Tokio is joyous over the news, as it gives Japan mastery of the sea and restores commerce.

TOKIO IS JOYFUL

Cries of "Banzai" Fill the Streets of Japan's Capital.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Flags are flying and cries of "Banzai" are ringing in the streets of Tokio today in honor of the victories gained at sea by Admiral Togo and Vice Admiral Kamimura. Underneath the jollity of the populace lies a feeling of deep satisfaction and gratification at the disposal of a desperately serious problem of the war.

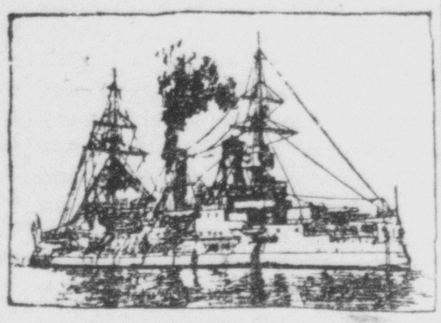


VICE ADMIRAL KAMIMURA.

The Russian squadron which confronted Admiral Togo refused battle. It was stronger than Admiral Togo's squadron in battleships and armored cruisers, and had it elected to fight the result might have altered the fortunes of war. The strength of the squadron which opposed Admiral Togo compelled him to draw vessels from the squadron under Vice Admiral Kamimura, and this left the Japanese navy powerless to operate against the Russian Vladivostok squadron and unable to prevent the raids of these vessels.

The raid conducted by the Vladivostok squadron in July was extremely expensive to Japan and not only was retaliation tempting, but it was demanded by commercial interests. The navy, however, grimly refused to make a diversion and stuck to Port Arthur. It was confident that the harbor would seen be untenable for the Russian warships, that it would eventually get a fair fight in the open seaway from the Russian land batteries, and that the Japanese would win. These calculations of the navy were correct, and the Russians, with the chances even, have been hopelessly defeated. Vice Admiral Kamimura, after months of weary and patient waiting, finally got his chance at dawn Sunday off Tsu Island. He sunk the Russian cruiser Rurik and sent the cruisers Gromoboi and Rossia fleeing back from the fight.

Japanese guns dominate the dockyards at Port Arthur and in view of this fact it would seem to be impossible again to make seaworthy or fightable the Russian battleships which have returned to Port Arthur. It is probable that the Russian battleship Czarevitch will disarm at Tsingchou. The best possible naval force that Russia can now concentrate at Vladivostok is four cruisers.



BATTLESHIP CESAREVITCH.

In the fight of Aug. 10 the squadron under Admiral Togo was practically uninjured. The battleship Mikasa suffered the most, but she continues on the fighting line. The cruisers Yakumo, Nishin and Kasuga also were hit, but temporary repairs already have been made and they are fully serviceable. Eleven wounded officers and sixty-six wounded men have arrived at Sasebo. The imperial prince Hiroyasu Kyacho, who holds the rank of commander in the Japanese navy, was hit in the region of the heart. His wound, however, is slight.

Jap Losses at Sea.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—The following are the casualties sustained by the Japanese in the action of Aug. 10:

On board the battleship Mikasa, Admiral Togo's flagship, there were four officers and twenty-nine men killed, six officers and twenty-nine men severely wounded and four officers and twenty-nine men slightly wounded. While the armored cruiser Yakumo had one officer and eleven men killed and ten wounded, on board the armored cruiser Nishin seven officers and nine men were killed and two officers and fifteen men were wounded. Ten men were wounded on the armored cruiser Kasuga. The torpedo boat destroyer Asagiri had two men killed. On board torpedo boat No. 38 one man was killed and eight others wounded.

The Rurik Was Sunk.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The Japanese legation has received a cablegram from Tokio saying that "Admiral Kamimura reports that our squadron, after five hours' severe fighting with the three ships of the Vladivostok squadron on the morning of the 14th in the mouth of Tsushima Island, sank the Rurik. The Rossia and the Gromoboi, which appeared to have suffered heavily, fled northward. Our damages are slight."

In Desperate Situation.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—Aside from the official reports of the Ryeshitelni affair and the flood of belated telegrams from Liao Yang and Anshanshan, no actual news from the front has been received. There is a persistent rumor that Port Arthur has fallen, but it cannot be confirmed. There is a general belief, which is borne out by the latest dispatches, that the situation at Port Arthur is a desperate one.

Port Arthur Army Strengthened.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Mukden states that the Japanese Port Arthur army has been largely reinforced and has taken up a position in two large bodies, one on the heights between Lung Wung Tao and Pigeon bay, and the other on the hills near Louisa bay. Guns have also been placed on the heights east of the Wolf hills.

An Official Protest Prepared.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—Russia has drawn up a protest against the seizure of the torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni by the Japanese in the neutral harbor at Chefoo, which will be presented to the Japanese government through France.

Wounds Terminated Fatally.

Chefoo, Aug. 15.—Captain Matousevitch, the late Rear Admiral Withoft's chief of staff, who was wounded during the Japanese attack on the battleship Czarevitch, has died of his wounds.

Massacre Is Reported.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—A Numuro (Japan) telegram states that Russian soldiers at Kamchatka massacred eighty-seven of the crew of the Japanese schooner Teichi.

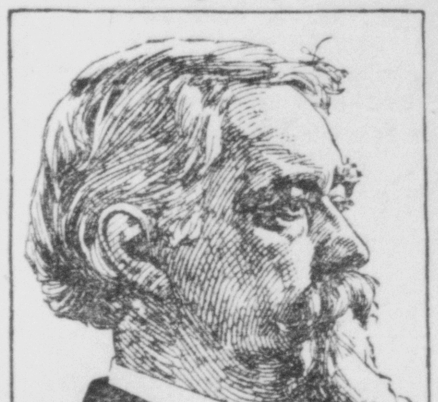
THE AUXILIARY BODIES

With the Veterans There Meet the Various Organizations Allied to the Grand Army.

Choice of Gen. Black's Successor As Commander-in-Chief Attracts Much Attention.

Boston, Aug. 15.—The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic with its several affiliated bodies opened in this city today, and is expected to be one of the largest in recent years. The city is extensively and handsomely decorated in honor of the occasion and the Boston Common and public streets bear electrical illuminations of unusual brilliancy. Commander-in-Chief Black, accompanied from Washington by members of his family, arrived at encampment headquarters at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon and was given a rousing reception.



GENERAL JOHN C. BLACK.

In connection with the meetings of the Grand Army there will be held the annual gatherings of the National Woman's Relief Corps, the National Daughters of Veterans, the National Sons of Veterans, the National Ladies' Aid society, auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans; the National Ladies of the G. A. R.; the National Army Nurses' association, the National Association of Naval Veterans, and the National Association of Ex-Prisoners of War.

The meetings and reunions of these various organizations will continue until Saturday. The feature of the week will be the parade of the Grand Army men on Tuesday, when it is expected that from 20,000 to 40,000 will be in line.

On Tuesday evening the mammoth campfire of the Grand Army will be held in Mechanics' building. William M. Olin of this state will preside and arrangements have been made to receive 10,000 people. On Wednesday the Women's Relief Corps of the G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans, the Daughters of Veterans, and other associations will hold their annual business sessions. Much interest centers in the choice of the new commander-in-chief. For this office there are already several prominent candidates, including General Wilmont W. Blackman of Massachusetts; Colonel John C. Shotts and Colonel Allen C. Bakewell of New York. The annual meetings are expected to last through Thursday.

A GLITTERING GATHERING

Thousands of Uniformed Pythians In Session at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 15.—Thousands of members of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, have arrived in Louisville to be present at the biennial encampment which opened today. The Kentucky brigade of 600 is on escort duty. Divided into committees, the Kentuckians meet each train and pilot the arriving Pythians to the tented city at Shawnee park, where accommodations have been prepared for 20,000 people. The delegations from nearby states are expected to be largely augmented today, as numerous special trains are scheduled to arrive, one road alone having notice of ten extra trains on the way.

A New Orleans committee opened headquarters at the Galt House today and entered actively in the fight for the next biennial. The Nashville and Boston committees are already at work for the honor, and Cincinnati is expected to enter the lists Tuesday.

The business meetings of the conclave do not begin until Tuesday morning, and, judging from the numerous matters of interest which are to come up, the sessions will continue until Friday night. The parade is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon and the competitive drills begin Wednesday.

Another Naval Battle.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—A report has been received by the State Department that another naval battle is in progress at Port Arthur.

It is stated that the Russian warships driven back to Port Arthur after the last engagement with the Japanese made another dash for liberty early this morning.

The fleet left on guard by Togo intercepted them, and the battle was on when the report to the government here was sent.

PARKER AS A TRIMMER.

The more Parker's speech of acceptance is read the more it is seen to be the words of a political trickster, and not the message of a statesman. On matters about which there is no difference of opinion he spoke positively, but on many questions about which there is an honest difference of opinion, he either had nothing to say or spoke evasively after the style of David B. Hill. For example he spoke against a large standing army. This was a perfectly safe position to take because it is the same position taken by the Republicans and all other parties in this country. There is perhaps not a man in the United States who would advocate a standing army little larger in proportion to our population than we have always maintained. On the question of maintaining a large navy, as to which there is a difference of opinion among American people, he had not one word to say. The position of the Republican party has always been that a respectable navy was necessary. It was this that made possible the victories of Dewey and others during the Spanish-American war, and it was these splendid victories which advertized our country to the nations of the world. Ever since the Manilla victory people everywhere have been wanting goods of the American brand. If Parker had said nothing about the army he could consistently have kept silent as to the navy; but the only explanation for his speaking of the former and not the latter is that he is a trimmer,

THE Landis-Clark politcal debate at New Albany was a real hot battle of words and was heard by about 5000 people. But Clark, the democrat, got mad which is proof that he got the worst of it.

W. E. SPRINGER, the Fourth district chairman, was nominated for representative Saturday by the republican convention of Bartholomew conuty. He is a hustler and in every way worthy and we predict his election.

IN another column today is the first official notice published of the special election to be held in this city September 6 to decide the matter of an appropriation of $37,500 for a new high school building. The plan as announced is to erect this building just north of the Shields school building on the same lot. FIGHT FOR PROSECUTOR.

The Swails-Voyles Mix Up as Seen by Billy Blodgett.

A few days ago W. H. Blodgett, staff correspondent of the Indianapolis News, was in Seymour and while here he got the story of the fight for prosecutor between O. O. Owails, of this city, and Willard Voyles, of Salem. Following is what he has to say about it:

"It is likely the democratic state committee will be called upon to settle the controversy over the nomination of the candidate for prosecuting attorney in this judicial district. The republicans have kindly proffered their services and propose to settle all differences by electing a republican to the office, but their unprejudiced suggestion has been declined. The district is composed of the counties of Jackson, Orange and Washington, which is democratic as far as two of the counties are concerned, and Orange county in local affairs sometimes kicks over the republican traces. So the democrats have practically a sure thing if they can reach some agreement. The state committee has not been appealed to as yet, but from the outlook the democrats of the district are not going to be able to settle the matter themselves, so "Billy" O'Brien and his merry men may be called in.

The candidates for prosecuting attorney were O. O. Swails, of this city, and Williard H. Voyles, of Salem, and they both made a warm canvass for the nomination. Swails carried his county and Washington county cast its vote for Voyles. Orange county stood neutral and both the candidates got into that county after delegate votes. There was some delay in calling the district convention but Swails paid no attention to that until one of his friends handed him a letter, of which the following is a copy:

"Salem, Ind., March 21, 1904.

Dear Sir:—I have learned that the convention in Orange county to select delegates to the judicial district convention will be held on Friday, March 25, 1904, at —o'clock. Don't let any one but my friends know of this in advance. The call will not come out until Wednesday's paper. This gives us a little advantage over our opponents. Be sure that every man who is my friend and will vote for me knows of this convention and will be there to vote for me. Don't let a single man who is for Voyles or who can be persuaded to vote for me stay away from this convention. As soon as the call appears in the paper see your township chairman and learn where the convention will be held in your township. Then make an effort to see that all my friends attend the convention and vote for me. Thanking you in advance for your help, I am, very truly yours,

"WILLARD H. VOYLES."

Of course this started an up oar in Jackson county, and when the call for the convention was printed in a Salem paper three days before the convention was to be held, Jackson county went to Orleans with a whole lot of bottled wrath and a supply of clubs. When it came time to call the convention to order the fun started. Ernest Long, chairman of Jackson county, was present, but Chairman Paynter, of Washington, was represented by Louis Benua, of Salem, and Chairman Perry McCart, of Orange county, sent in his stead John Lingle, of Orleans. Long asserted that under Rule 5 of the state committee he was authorized to call the meeting to order, as the rule provides that the chairman of the county casting the largest vote for Governor in the last election has that right in the district convention. But John Lingle insisted that as the convention was held in his county he ought to be temporary chairman. So Long stood at one end of a little table and Lingle at the other, and both pounded and yelled for order at the same time, and each told the convention not to pay any attention to the other chap.

The Swails men declared that James F. Applewhite was the permanent chairman and the Voyles contingent voted for Zac M. Scifres, who is Voyles' law partner, and the nominee for joint representative. Both sides claimed the chairman. When Swails was placed in nomination the speeches were addressed to Applewhite, and the other side yelled and shouted like Indians. Voyles was nominated amidst a great uproar, his supporters addressing themselves entirely to Scifres. In the convention Jackson county had nineteen votes, Orange nine and Washington fourteen votes.

GAVE NOMINATION TO SWAILS.

In the melee Applewhite declared that Swails had received the nomination by a vote of 21 7-10 to 20 3 10 for Voyles. Then every one left and the fight has been going on ever since. Voyles claims the nomination because of the alleged illegality of the convention and Swails claims it because he says the convention was legal and he got the most votes, the latter proposition being also disputed by Voyles.

Neither side will give in and the matter will be more complicated, as the election commissioners of the two counties will likely place the name of their own county candidate on the ticket. The republicans hope that the fight will become so bitter that there will be a chance to elect a republican prosecutor. But the democratic leaders believe that the State committee will be able to straighten out the affair to the satisfaction of the democratic party.

The Unexpected Frequently Happens.

Mr. Oliver Robertson, a well-known and highly respected farmer of Hamilton township says: "I had tried everywhere and put on everybody's lenses I came in contact with during the past four or five years, in hopes of finding lenses that would enable me to read, but failed, and was recommended to Mr. and Mrs. Harsch as a last resort.

I have now been reading for the past four weeks and my distant vision is greatly improved, and the lenses seem to get better every day I wear them. I can read with comfort and my general health is constantly improving since the eye strain has been stopped, and I publicly commend Mr. and Mrs. Harsch to all who have eye sight troubles "

We have plenty of patients who daily recommend us thus. Mr. and Mrs. Harsch, Optometrists.

AS A CALL TO DUTY

Senator Fairbanks Accepts His Unanimous Nomination.

WISDOM OF REPUBLICAN POLICIES

Has Been Confirmed by Events Within the Knowledge of Every American Voter—Election of President Roosevelt Necessary to the Furtherance of the Best Interests of the Republic.

In his speech formally accepting his nomination as vice president, delivered on the occasion of the notification exercises at Indianapolis on August 3rd, Senator Fairbanks briefly sketched the issues of the present campaign. He said:

"Mr. Root and Gentlemen of the Committee—I thank you for the very generous terms in which you have conveyed the official notification of my nomination for vice president of the United States. The unsolicited and unanimous nomination by the Republican party is a call to duty that I am pleased to obey.

"I accept the commission which you bring with a profound sense of the dignity and responsibilities of the exalted position for which I have been nominated. My utmost endeavor will be to discharge in full measure the trust if the action of the convention shall meet the approval of the American people.

"The platform adopted by the convention is an explicit and emphatic declaration of principles in entire harmony with those policies of our party which have brought great honor and prosperity to our country, and which, if continued, will bring us like blessings in the future.

The monetary and economic policies which have been so forcibly reanounced lie at the very foundation of our industrial life, and are essential to the fullest development of our national strength. They give vitality to our manufactures and commerce and if impaired or overthrown there would inevitably ensue a period of industrial depression, to the serious injury of the vast interests of both labor and capital.

Freedom to Oppressed.

"The Republican party since it preserved the integrity of the republic and gave freedom to the oppressed, never rendered a more important service to the country than when it established the gold standard. Under it we have increased our currency supply sufficiently to meet the normal requirements of business.

"It is gratifying that the convention made frank and explicit declaration of the inflexible purpose of the party to maintain the gold standard. It is essential not only that the standard should be as good as the best in the world, but that the people should have the assurance that it will be so maintained.

"The enemies of sound money were powerful enough to suppress the mention of the gold standard lately adopted by the Democratic national convention. The leader of Democracy in two national campaigns has declared since the adjournment of the convention that as soon as the election is over he will undertake to organize the forces within the Democratic party for the next national contest, for the purpose of advancing the radical policies for which his element of the party stands.

Must Uphold Gold.

"He frankly says that the money question is for the present in abeyance. In view of these palpable facts it is not the part of wisdom to relax our vigilance in safeguarding the integrity of our money system. We must have not only a president who is unalterably committed to the gold standard, but both houses of congress in entire accord with him upon the subject.

"In congress, and not with the president, rests the supreme power to determine the standard of our money. Though the chief executive should oppose, the congress, acting within its independent constitutional authority, could at any time overthrow or change the monetary standard.

"The wisdom of our protective policy finds complete justification in the industrial development of our country. This policy has become a most vital part of our industrial system and must be maintained unimpaired. When altered conditions make changes in schedules desirable, their modification can be safely intrusted to the Republican party.

Wise Nomination.

"If they are to be changed by the enemies of the system along free trade lines, uncertainty would take the place of our certainty and a reaction would surely follow to the injury of wage earners and all who are profitably employed. Uncertainty undermines confidence and loss of confidence breeds confusion and distress in commercial affairs.

"The convention was wise not only in its enunciation of party policies, but in its nomination of a candidate for the presidency. During the last three years President Roosevelt has been confronted with large and serious questions.

"These he has met and solved with high wisdom and courage. The charges made against him in the Democratic platform find an irrefutable answer in his splendid administration, never surpassed in all the history of the Republic and never equaled by the party which seeks to discredit it.

Excellent Administration.

"The election of the President is imperatively demanded by those whose success depends upon the continuance of a safe, conservative and efficient administration of public affairs. We have ample record of deeds done, of beneficent things accomplished in the public interest. The vast business of the government has been well administered. The laws have been enforced fearlessly and impartially.

"The treasury has been adequately supplied with revenue, and the financial credit of the government has never been better. Our foreign trade balance continues to increase our national wealth. We have adopted an irrigation policy which will build homes in the arid regions of the West. The Panama canal, the hope of centuries, is in course of construction under the sole protection of the American flag.

"We have peace and great prosperity at home and are upon terms of good neighborhood with the entire world. These conditions constitute the strongest possible assurances for the future.

"Later, I shall avail myself of a favorable opportunity to submit to you, and through you, to my fellow citizens, a fuller expression of my views concerning the questions now in issue.

"Permit me again to thank you and to express the belief that we may confidently submit our cause to the candid and patriotic judgment of our countrymen."

GOOD GAME OF BALL.

Reds Won Close Game From Indianapolis Club.

Probably the best game of ball of the season on the local grounds was played yesterday afternoon in which the Reds won a ten inning game from the Washingtons, of Indianapolis. Both clubs played good ball and the game was clean throughout and void of wrangling. Both pitchers did fine work and had clever support. McNany, left fielder for the visitors, distinguished himself by making several difficult catches. Following is the score:

PRIZES AWARDED.

Kentucky River Excursionists Distribute Some Bouquets

The Falls City, on her trip to Valley View last night was crowded with passengers, and, while on her way to this city, to enliven the occasion three prizes of handsome bouquets were offered for the oldest lady, the prettiest girl and the ugliest man aboard that steamer. A committee was appointed and the following persons were the recipients of the floral emblems

Prettiest girl — Miss Margaret Thompson, of Seymour.

Ugliest man—Judge Thomas B. Buskirk, of Paoli.

We are informed that the only difficulty the committee had was in deciding who was really the prettiest flower among the great bunches of American beauties who had taken passage on the steamer, but it is said their choice was a wise one. Jimmy O'Donnell was selected to secure the bouquets and they were indeed handsome.

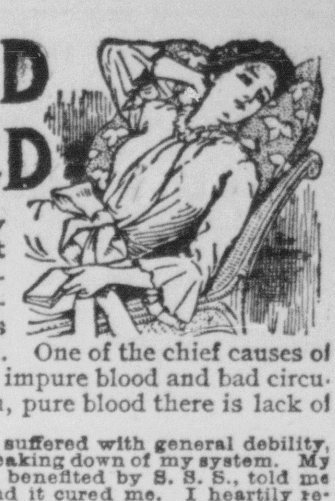
ALWAYS TIRED
NEVER RESTED



To be tired out from hard work or bodily exercise is natural and rest is the remedy, but there is an exhaustion without physical exertion and a tired, never-rested feeling—a weariness without work that is unnatural and shows some serious disorder is threatening the health. One of the chief causes of that "Always-tired, never-rested condition" is impure blood and bad circulation. Unless the body is nourished with rich, pure blood there is lack of nervous force, the muscles become weak, the digestion impaired, and general disorder occurs throughout the system. Debility, insomnia, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, strength and energy, and the hundreds of little ailments we often have are due directly to a bad condition of the blood and circulation, and the quickest way to get rid of them is by purifying and building up the blood, and for this purpose no remedy equals S. S. S., which contains the best ingredients for cleansing the blood and toning up the system. It is a vegetable blood purifier and tonic combined, that enriches the blood, and through it the entire system is nourished and refreshing sleep comes to the tired, never-rested, body.

For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system. My cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic. Yours truly,
MRS. JOSIE A. BRITTAIN.

A BIT OF HISTORY

Which Shows How Little Faith Democracy Has in the Future.

Indianapolis, Aug. 15.—Republican politicians here are reciting with a good deal of relish a little incident that occurred at the time of the recent Democratic state convention, which they say shows how little real faith the Democratic leaders have in their big claims that they will be able to carry this state in the fall. On the day the convention met to make nominations, Edgar L. Maines of Zionsville appeared at the Grand hotel violently urging the nomination of Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon for governor. Now Maines and Ralston have been bitter political enemies for at least two years. In 1902 Maines took the control of Boone county affairs out of Ralston's hands after a hard fight. Last spring Ralston retaliated, however, by driving Maines almost entirely out of the county on the question of selecting Hearst delegates to the state convention, the county going overwhelmingly against Hearst and Maines. Maines' anxiety for Ralston's nomination naturally aroused interest. When asked why he supported his old-time enemy, he replied: "Well, Ralston has been going about the Ninth district telling Democrats we have a chance to win this year. Sam lost two races for secretary of state. I believe where a man has sacrificed himself for his party he should be given the first chance when there is an opportunity for him to win. Now Ralston, in my opinion, deserves something good at the hands of the party more than anyone else, and that is why I want to see him nominated. If he really thinks the Democrats can win, why does he dodge this nomination so hard?" And the look in Maines' eyes indicated the sarcasm of his unwonted support of Ralston.

The state board of health is continuing its campaign of education of the people to the point where they will demand some legislation of the next general assembly to lessen the danger to citizens from the ravages of tuberculosis. The last bulletin of the board sets out in alarming figures the number of deaths from the dread scourge. The total deaths from consumption numbered 388. Of these forty were husbands and fathers between eighteen and forty years of age. By the deaths of parents 171 orphans were left dependent on the state or on relatives. The establishment of a state hospital for consumptives where men and women could be treatd while in the first stages of the disease and cured, in the opinion of the health authorities, would greatly reduce the death rate from consumption. The officials are prepared to ask the legislature to make provision for such a hospital. The board is not using the figures for the purpose of frightening anyone, but the members believe that the people should be given direct information on the subject that they may exert pressure on the legislature to have some law by which health officials may combat the disease, passed.

Just at present state officers here are beginning to take a great deal of interest in the celebration of Indiana Day at the St. Louis exposition. Sept. 1 is the day set aside for observance by this state, and as this day is fast approaching the program for the occasion is receiving a great deal of attention. The arrangements, of course are in the hands of the Indiana World's Fair commission, but all the state officials are interested in the matter. It is their hope to make Indiana Day the greatest of all the state days. That is why they are so anxious that every detail of the arrangements for the celebration shall be perfect. It is the intention of Governor Durbin to attend with his entire staff, and many other notables from the state will likewise be invited to be present.

Indianapolis may yet see the inauguration of a movement which will bring about a solution of labor difficulties. P. H. Scullin of Sacramento, representing the National Industrial Peace association is losing no time in perfecting the organization of a branch of his association in this city. The purpose of the society is to secure the placing of laws requiring arbitration of labor disputes on the statute books of every state. If possible national headquarters will be established in Indianapolis whence the work of the organization all over the country can be directed. A good beginning has been made and Mr. Scullin feels confident of ultimate success.

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like this in Seymour.

Scores of Seymour people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Capt. Carr, retired veteran of the Civil war, living on North Broadway says; "I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills for lameness in my back and depressing aching across the loins. The first box which I procured from C. W. Milhous' drug store so benefitted me that I bought a second and it removed the backache and banished the disagreeable aching in the top and back of my head. I can with pleasure recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and lumbago for I have proved their merits by my own experience."

Death List Swelled.

Pueblo, Col Aug. 15.—Three more bodies of the victims of the Eden disaster were discovered by the searching party. The list of identified dead now numbers eighty-three.

Much Depends on It.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—On the outcome of a conference which may be held today the present chances of a settlement of the stockyards strike depend. The nature of this reported conference is very indefinite. It is asserted positively by some of the labor leaders that a conference with the packers will be held, but the packers will not affirm or deny that such is the case.

One Killed, Forty Injured.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 15.—One man was killed and about forty other persons were injured in a passenger wreck on the Tennessee Central railroad, seventy miles east of here Sunday. A flange of a wheel on a truck of the rear car broke, derailing the two last coaches. One of them turned completely over and both were badly wrecked.

Two Men Burned to Death.

Saratoga, Aug. 15.—Michael D. Callaghan, aged fifty-three, a former racehorse trainer, and Thomas Eagan, aged twenty, a racing stable attache, were burned to death early Sunday by an explosion of gasoline, which caused a fire that destroyed the Callaghan cafe near the running park.

DRIFTING TOWARDS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Many people who are neglecting symptoms of kidney trouble, hoping "it will wear away," are drifting towards Bright's Disease, which is kidney trouble in one of its worst forms.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

stops irregularities, strengthens the urinary organs and builds up the worn-out tissues of the kidneys so they will perform their functions properly. Healthy kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood as it passes through them. Diseased kidneys do not, and the poisonous waste matter is carried by the circulation to every part of the body, causing dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, sluggish liver, irregular heart action, etc.

If you have any signs of Kidney or Bladder Trouble commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once, as it will cure a slight disorder in a few days and prevent a fatal malady. It is pleasant to take and benefits the whole system.

How to Find Out.

You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased, and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE should be taken at once.

G. B. Burhans Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burhans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes:

"About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick-dust sediment and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed, and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble."

PRAYING FOR RAIN

APPEALING TO HEAVEN

In the Churches Throughout That Region Sunday the Farmers Met For Special Prayer.

Matters of Interest For Indiana Readers Set Out Briefly In This Column.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 15.—Driven almost to desperation by the continued drouth, hundreds of farmers throughout the Kankakee valley assembled in the churches in their neighborhood Sunday and fervently prayed for rain.

The drouth has been so protracted that fires are devastating the country, destroying immense quantities of grain and hay and entailing untold financial loss.

Farmers fear that the drouth will become as severe as that of five years ago, when hundreds of cattle perished and thousands of acres of land were laid a barren waste.

Corn Drying Up.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 15.—Because of the continued drouth in this vicinity the situation is becoming alarming. Corn is withering and is much in need of rain and the meadows are drying up. Prairie fires during the last week have been numerous.

THE STARBUCK MYSTERY

Henry County Will Take a Hand In Apprehending Murderers.

New Castle, Ind., Aug. 15.—The county council, which was called in special session, authorized the county commissioners to make an appropriation of $500 to be used as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Mrs. Starbuck and her baby girl, who were killed and thrown into an abandoned well on the night of July 9.

In addition to the $500 offered by the county, friends and neighbors of William Starbuck, the husband of the murdered woman, have, it is understood, subscribed another $500. The total amount will shortly be duly posted and another arrest will doubtless follow in a short time.

Sheriff Christopher is satisfied who killed the defenseless mother and child, but he has not sufficient evidence to warrant an arrest. Further than this, there have been no new developments during the past week. The dastardly attempt to chloroform Madison Starbuck and Mrs. Mary Creetor, important witnesses, has received much attention during the last few days, but it, like the murder, is still shrouded in a cloud of mystery.

Tragedy in a Saloon.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 15.—In a drunken brawl in the Klondike saloon here Hoosier Burns, a farmer, aged seventy years, father of the Rev. Albert Burns, pastor of the Christian church at Moristown, was struck on the head with a beer bottle by David Wagner and with a pair of knucks by Nitz Monroe, Wagner's brother-in-law, and died in half an hour. Wagner is in jail, but Monroe escaped and the officers started in pursuit of him. After two hours, however, Monroe returned and surrendered to the sheriff. He is now in jail.

She Bade Guests Good-by.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Clara Banta took a dose of carbolic acid that will cause her death. The attending physicians say she had visitors at her home and, excusing herself, went upstairs and took the drug. Returning, she told her friends what she had done and bade all good-by. A note to her husband said: "That while we are living happily, I have troubles of which you know nothing, and I have long contemplated self-destruction." Banta is her third husband and the two former are living.

Republican Editorial Picnic.

Indianapolis, Aug. 15.—The third annual basket picnic of the Indiana Republican editors will be held at South Grove, Riverside park, Aug. 26. Indiana's two United States senators and a number of members of the house will be present and it is the intention to have some orator of national prominence deliver an address on "The Power of the Press."

Lives With a Broken Back.

Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 15.—John Krieshner, who suffered a broken back on Jan. 22 last, by a heavy iron gate falling on him at the Clover Leaf shops, has brought suit for $20,000 damages, alleging that by reason of the accident he is permanently disabled from doing manual labor, his former means of support for himself and family.

Crop Failure Affects Factory.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 15.—Part of the immense factory of Gaar, Scott & Co., thrashing machine manufacturers, has shut down because of the weak demand for machines due to the poor wheat crop. If there is to be a heavy crop in the Northwest, which can be determined soon, the factory will resume operations with a full force.
